AGENT'S SERVICE: Its value is often overlooked by the policyholder because it has been rendered in too unobtrusive fashion

We see the work of many agents and many of them give their assured service that is literally beyond price.

There are a few who do not give value received.

The competent agent who has rendered a full measure of service—and has impressed that upon his assured—has little to fear from competitors who sell their wares on price, who dangle a prospective 'savin' of a few premium dollars before their prospect's eyes and carefully say nothing of the liabilities he will assume to get that "saving."

Father DARKLEAF'S Column

Wherein the Editor Gets in a Personal Touch

Well, I've finally seen the latest mechanical contrivance. "N. & W." Cannon invited Mother Brightleaf and me over t'other night to play bridge on his new — fangled mechanical table that shuffles and deals his own cards. The thing is sweet in appearance, but never the less it does the chores required of it in perfect style. Mr. Cannon, you've got us all jealous of you, now.

• • •

Father Darkleaf finds that folks are for flashlights or against them and few are on the fence. Most of those "for" flashlights use them all the time. They sleep with them under their pillows at night. They carry them in their cars. They dare no venture out, even to prayer meeting, without their trusty flashlight. If you drop your ace of spades to the floor while playing bridge, they have their flashlight on it by the time it hits the floor. It seems to be an all-consuming habit. On the other hand, the "non users" just fret around in the dark and prowl for hours rather than be bothered with a flashlight. And they have a sort of haughty distain for those who depend upon a flashlight. Use one around them, and they keep an aloofness and lack of enthusiasm that is truly remarkable. Which are you, a user or not?

UNCOMMON SENSE By JOHN BLAKE

•Common sense is a human attribute widely distributed. Without it one can not get far in business or in any other walk of life.

•We hear so much about common sense that we do not stop to consider that the man who gets ahead of his fellows, who does big things, who creates, is the man of uncommon sense.

•This is the kind of sense John Blake crams into his "Uncommon Sense" column which appears in this paper. He is a man who has succeeded himself, a man who observes the principles he urges upon you.

You will get much out of Mr. Blake's column. In every sentence there is a thought worthy of digestion and of discussion in your club or with your friends.

"I Caught One That Long"

THIS, gentle readers, is a fish story. Stop us if you've heard it—or if you saw it in the "Finney of the Forest" comic strip. Finney, the cop, rushes on the scene of what appears to be the crime of the century. He sees a man on a street corner in broad daylight standing before another man with his hands outstretched in midair—just another victim, evidently of the stick-em-up fad. He asks the public enemy. But this time the victim protests. He was just telling about that fish he caught—"one that long!"

"It Tasted Swell!"

Does your husband tell about the fish he ate with the same enthusiasm that he tells about the fish he caught? If not, that's something for you to worry about. Especially if fishing weeds have gone out to faraway waters to catch the very best possible fish, if canners have used every modern method to pack it so that it comes to you with the best fresh fish flavor—then you must cook it so that it's something to talk about. Here are some suggestions for

Some Good Fish Dishes

Salmon with Egg Sauce: Steam one tall can of salmon, open and slide out on a hot platter. Make a white sauce, using two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, the contents of one 6-ounce can of evaporated milk, three-fourths cup water and salt and pepper to taste. Then add two hard-cooked chopped eggs to the sauce and pour over the salmon. This serves four persons.

Lobster and Crab Cocktail: Chill the following ingredients: one-third cup chili sauce, three tablespoons mayonnaise, one-half cup of finely-cut celery, one half of a 6-ounce can of lobster, one-half of a 6-ounce can of crabmeat. Beat together the chili sauce and mayonnaise and add the celery. Remove the lobster from its liquor and cut into small pieces. Remove the crabmeat and look with a fine fork. Serve in glass cups lined with lettuce leaves. This serves eight persons.

Local Farmers Get Crop Benefit Checks

LOCAL CLASS LAYS OUT IDEAS FOR PROSPERITY

Offer Timely Plans For Welfare And Prosperity Of Appomattox

The following article comes to us from the civics class of the local high school:

We believe that the material welfare of the town of Appomattox may be greatly increased at very small cost. For a town to increase in wealth, money must be spent in that town by people other than residents. When one person in town trades with another person in that town, the town, as a whole does not benefit whether there is a profit in the transaction or not. But when visitors or strangers bring new money into our town the town is materially benefitted. What we need is not to turn our old money over again and again, but to bring new money in.

We, as a civics class, believe that much of this may be accomplished if we make our town so attractive that tourists and others will be drawn to and through it. For these reasons we believe that civic beauty is as much an asset to a town as its factories, stores or parks. Then, we, the general public, believe that some little things may be done which will help the looks of our town and listed below are suggestions offered by the senior civics class:

A. Improve the approach to the town for at least one half of a mile out.

1. Remove, citizens cooperating signs and buildings on the approach to town.

2. Erect attractive "welcome" signs properly installed with national events that took place here.

3. Erect "goodbye" signs wit "call again" inserted thereon.

These should be very attractive, so as to leave a "good taste" to those leaving.

4. Install the word "Appomattox at street lights, over highway at each end of town, so that tourists may knowwhere they are while passing at night. Lights already there.

5. Plant trees or shrubbery along the main four main high way approaches to town, such as ... myrtle, red bud, etc.

Note: This timely and highly instructive article will be concluded in next week's issue.

Court Friday

The circuit court of Appomattox county will convene here tomorrow and probably continue over Saturday. The damage suit of William O'Brien and W. J. Covington will be heard at this time.

Another civil case had been slated for hearing today, but at the last moment was compromised, making the session unnecessary.

To Exhibit

Appomattox farmers are now preparing their exhibits for entry in the annual state and grain show, to be held in Hopewell Jan. 24 and 25.

Last year the show was held in Lynchburg and many local people attended and lots of exhibit prizes came to Appomattox.

Exhibits must be in by January 23.

W. H. Byrne, of Blacksburg, will again be in general charge of the show.

Advisory Board

County agent R. B. Hundgins announced today that the annual meeting of the county agricultural advisory board would be held next Tuesday.

Mr. Hudgins will complete all arrangements for the meeting today and tomorrow write each member of the board as to the program and hour of meeting.

The meeting will be held in the agricultural building at the local high school.

Farmers with more tobacco than they are allowed to sell under their government contracts, may sell 15 per cent over the contract. However if they do this their next 7 1/2 per cent payment on the 1934 crop will be reduced to 2 per cent.

Farmers Want Higher Charge

Expect Plan To Be Presented Appomattox Board Soon

At a recent meeting of the dark fired tobacco production control board of Buckingham county, a plan to meet the increase of the tax on tobacco sold when not produced under government contract, from 25 per cent to 33.

It is expected that a similar resolution will be presented at the next meeting of the Appomattox board and also be carried to the other counties in the dark fired belt.

Local farmers are recently by an overwhelming majority for the continuation of the AAA program. Considerable sentiment for the proposal from Buckingham has been heard locally.

New Rules

The town council has decided to allow skating on the sidewalks of Appomattox other than on Main and Church streets, and the same warns that both of these streets are a part of the state highway system and therefore it is against the law to skate in the street.

Parents are urged to cooperate in keeping children from skating in the streets, as this dangerous practice constitutes an invitation for serious accidents.

At Banquet

Owen J. Carson, Bob Morris, D. W. Dinkins, Hunter F. Martin, C. L. Ransom and R. B. Hudgins attended the annual meeting and the banquet of the Lynchburg Crop Production Loan Association this week.

Building

J. E. Sears has purchased from Mrs. S. L. Ferguson the lot at the Bent Creek, Oakville road with the state highway intersection of 460 and 306, and has broken ground for a new service station.

TO RESEED GROUNDS

The lawn and grounds at the court house have been plowed in readiness for seeding and beautification next spring.

McDearmon In Charge

Lewis McDearmon Now In Charge Of Employment Here

The National Employment Service has an office here at the court house for those of this c ounty to register if they are seeking employment. The office, operated by the government is to help those seeking jobs to find them at no cost to the seeker.
